This mid-western girl moved to Chicago and began her hospitality career at Coco Pazzo Café. Her appreciation for “all things Italian” began when she spent a college semester abroad while earning her degree in architecture. Devon spent a month in Florence where, in addition to the age-old structural design, she fell in love with the food. “I have a passion for design and I think an excellent culinary experience is one of the greatest works of art.”

When Devon became the lunchtime hostess at Coco Pazzo, Jack was quick to see her ease with guests and her interest in planning for special occasions. It was no surprise that he promoted her to Event Coordinator. What does she enjoy about Coco Pazzo? “Working with great people who are good at what they do and make me smile everyday,” says Devon.
